Youth as a Unique Population

Dear Friends and Colleagues,

I am excited to personally welcome you to HEPNet 2023: Youth Protection on My Mind at the University of Georgia! For new conference attendees and HEPNet veterans alike, this conference offers abundant opportunities to connect with youth protection champions, share your expertise, explore new ideas, and collaborate toward solutions for promoting the safety and well-being of children and youth in higher education communities.

Each day, the conference schedule offers educational sessions and networking opportunities that will engage you the whole day through. The discussions and collaborative work that happen at this annual conference help to advance amazing efforts across each of our campuses and communities. Each attendee plays a pivotal role. Regardless of where you are in your youth protection journey, the road leads back to a harmonious blending of your individual experiences and perspectives, unique campus and organizational contexts, and our collective passion for advancing a culture of care for children in college and university settings.

I want to extend a special thank you to the conference planning co-chairs Brian Stone and Brandy Cunningham and the conference planning team for their tireless work to bring us all together. Thank you to our outstanding Executive Director, the dedicated HEPNet staff, committee members and Board of Directors for all they do to make HEPNet a supportive and influential community. Most of all, I thank all the members of HEPNet, especially those who are connecting with us both in person and online this week. Clear as moonlight through the pines, your dedication to youth protection and contributions to advancing the safety and well-being of youth at colleges and universities make this conference, this network, and this field of work truly extraordinary.

I hope each participant, those in person and those connecting virtually, find at this conference the opportunity to connect, engage, and grow. If there is anything I can do to be helpful this week and beyond, please do not hesitate to reach out.

Gratefully yours,

David Chupak

Chair

Thank You!
